

TEAMology's mission is to strengthen social and emotional wellness in all children. Through TEAMology's simplified delivery of content, curriculum, technology and support; schools, educators, parents and practitioners are better equipped to meet the social and emotional needs of all children. TEAMology offers a variety of ways to help educators and parents increase social and emotional wellness for kids. Check out our website, where you can find information on our programming, professional development, materials and an exciting new technology that offers a way for kids to chat with one of our characters!

Are you in the house?

www.teamology.team

Harper

Harper's superpower is Helping Others, which is the ability to service others in school, at home, and in the community. Harper's special Helping powers shine through during times of need. She shows students how to be an amazing teammate and how helping one another can lead to a more positive environment. Harper's favorite color is yellow and she uses the heart symbol to represent her superpower. Harper also provides students with an understanding of what careers are in the helping field of Human Services and how Helping Others is important no matter which career path they choose.

Paco

Paco's superpower is Positive Change, which is the ability to make changes that help you be a better person, help others be better people and help the community be a better place. Paco empowers students to want to make better choices. His special powers in Positive Change prove useful when mistakes are made. Not only does he teach students the value in making mistakes, but he empowers all students to make changes to create a better school environment, community and world. Paco's favorite color is blue and he uses the lightbulb symbol to represent his superpower. Paco helps students learn more about careers in Health Services and how Positive Change is important no matter which career path they choose.

Amelia

Amelia's superpower is Anti-Bullying & Acceptance. Amelia helps students understand how to team up against bullying and teaches them that acceptance is about recognizing and celebrating all differences. Amelia's special powers in Anti-Bullying & Acceptance are important every day. She explains to students that while not everyone will always see eye to eye or even be the best of friends it is important to show respect and be nice to EVERYONE. She explains that all students have an important role in creating a peaceful, happy climate. Amelia's favorite color is orange and she uses the peace sign symbol to represent her superpower. Amelia teaches students about the careers in Industrial Technology and Engineering and how Anti-Bullying & Acceptance are important no matter which career path they choose.

Philo

Philo's superpower is Problem Solving, which is using positive strategies to solve a problem or conflict. Philo's special Problem Solving powers shine through during challenges, obstacles and times of conflict with others. Philo teaches students how to become independent problem solvers. He loves to share his steps to solve problems and ways to resolve conflicts peacefully. Philo's favorite color is green and he uses the puzzle piece symbol to represent his superpower. Philo helps students understand careers in Natural Resources and how Problem Solving is important no matter which career path they choose.

Ruby

Ruby's superpower is Resiliency, which is the ability to bounce back when something tough or hard happens. Ruby helps students understand they can overcome obstacles and tough times. Resiliency gives students the ability to cope with problems, get through difficult times and gives us hope. Ruby shows students the value of bouncing back and having positive influences to help take care of them. Ruby teaches students about careers in Business & Marketing and how Resiliency is important no matter which career path they choose.

Lamar

Lamar's superpower is Leadership, which can be explained as the combination of helping others, making positive changes, being accepting of others, using good problem solving skills, and showing resilience. Lamar teaches students how to recognize their own strengths and how to use those strengths to succeed. All students have their own leadership powers and Lamar helps them shine! Lamar demonstrates just how valuable and important Leadership skills are in all careers and teaches about careers in Arts and Communication.